

Thank you for being a very special part of her life.

Time moves on but our hearts will never forget

Celebrating

Genevieve Frances Weinberg

July 7, 1927 – March 6, 2015

Those we love don't go away
They walk beside us everyday

All the love and care she lavished on our family will always be remembered.

A generous, witty woman who impacted the lives of everyone she touched, me too!

The force behind the Price Reunions
The glue that held us all together

A special lady, loving mother and great nurse — one of the most kind, generous and giving souls on the planet.

I loved your mom for many things including her unvarnished straight from the shoulder advice, her unfailing generosity and the way she always made us feel welcomed and loved.

She accepted all people for who they were with all of our faults and idiosyncrasies. She was always kind and thoughtful to me. I remember one birthday when I was a poor college student. She was visiting the San Diego house and brought me a huge grocery bag full of socks with a bow on it for my birthday. I needed socks and they must have been a good quality cotton because I still have a few pairs of them.

Without a doubt she and Ellie left a handprint on the heart of my family by making us a part of theirs.

Gen and Ellie spread so much love throughout their lives and created so many wonderful memories they will live on in others forever.

Genevieve Frances Price grew up in Lake Geneva Wisconsin, became a registered nurse and then moved to Long Beach, California where she met her loving husband, Elliot Weinberg. They celebrated 61 years of marriage until his death in 2012.

She is survived by her children and their spouses
Mike & Anita, Phil & Lori, Bob, Jackie & Mike, Stan & Dina, Janet & Dennis, Paul & Susie, her 13 grandchildren, her great-grandson Cole and a great many extended and adopted family members.

Wife, Mother, Sister, Friend, Aunt, Grandma, Great Grandma.

Loving, Kind, Generous, Concerned, Caring, Honest, Resilient.

A strong and courageous spirit who touched many lives and people's hearts.

We will miss her so much.
